TMAS invites your family to Family Museum Day at the African American Museum.

Did you know that the author of the Declaration of Independence, Thomas Jefferson, had over 600 enslaved people?

Join us and find out about the lifestyle of the people who lived at Monticello, a 5,000-acre plantation.

Monticello was the home to both the Jefferson family and an extended community of workers, black and white, enslaved and free. You can even learn how to trace your own family roots.

Don't miss this historical exhibit on one of America's most influential founding fathers and his family.
